IMPACT REPORT

LEVELING THE CHILD ADVOCACY FIELD

President Biden signed Executive Order 13985, “Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government.” This Executive Order defined the term “equity” as the consistent and systematic fair, just, and impartial treatment of all individuals, including those who belong to underserved communities that have been denied such treatment, such as Black, Latino, Indigenous and Native American, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders, and other persons of color; members of religious minorities; lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer persons; persons with disabilities; persons who live in rural areas; and persons otherwise adversely affected by persistent poverty or inequality. Historically, the child welfare system has not served all people equitably, and far too often, cases of poverty have been treated as neglect and child maltreatment.

Being committed to equity means that we must be willing to have difficult conversations. We must also be willing to examine whether and how existing policies and practices have had disparate, and sometimes harmful, impacts on historically underserved and marginalized people. This work requires honesty, openness, and a willingness to make changes. CASA of Cook County's Board of Directors prioritized this call to action by supporting legislative efforts to address inequitable funding for CASA of Cook County. For the first time in our 36-year history, Cook County CASA was awarded 1 million dollars through the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021. The Illinois Legislative Black Caucus played a pivotal role in heralding this historic investment from the state which will ultimately have a profound impact on our most vulnerable children in Cook County.

Addressing equity through CASA advocacy for foster children in Cook County was the driving force of our work this year. Currently, a child in foster care in Cook County is 90% likely to not have a steady, dedicated CASA volunteer. Families of color are disproportionately in the child welfare system and are more likely to experience negative outcomes compared to white families. Children of color are more likely to experience multiple placements, less likely to be reunited with their birth families, more likely to experience group care, less likely to establish a permanent placement and more likely to experience poor social, behavioral, and educational outcomes. CASA advocacy has been proven to mitigate these obstacles. The historical investment for CASA advocacy in Cook County will begin to level child advocacy for black and brown foster children.

We are deeply grateful to every individual, foundation, corporation, and government agency whose generosity has helped us reach new heights over the past year. Together, we can create better outcomes for children and families.

We believe that our vision of actualizing child advocacy equity for children in Cook County will become a reality.

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) of Cook County is to advance foster care child advocacy for children in Cook County by ensuring that their needs are met and rights are protected; by transitioning out of foster care into permanent, safe, and loving homes as quickly as possible; and that youth aging out of foster care have the resources and support they need to live independently.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY, & INCLUSION STATEMENT

At CASA of Cook County, we acknowledge that we work around and within a child welfare system steeped in structural racism. Black children, the only racial or ethnic group that is over-represented in Cook County foster care, make up only 25% of the Cook County population but more than 70% of the children in foster care. Once in foster care, Black children spend more time in the system and are less likely than children of other races to return to their parents or be adopted. This is a direct result of structural racism in every aspect of our society, which puts Black families at disproportionate risk of trauma, poverty, homelessness, and every form of family instability, at the same time that Black families are over-policed and over-monitored by social service systems.

HISTORY

CASA of Cook County was established in 1986, incorporated as an independent nonprofit agency in 2001, and is a member of the National CASA/GAL Association that is recognized and supported by the US Department of Justice and the Violence Against Women Act of Congress. CASA of Cook County is the largest of the 31 CASA programs in Illinois, the state which is last in the nation for achieving timely permanency, and has served more than 12,000 children in its 36-year history. CASA of Cook County is the only program of its kind in the county and has a unique position within the Cook County Juvenile Court, allowing the organization access to a court system that is traditionally closed to outside parties due to the confidential nature of the proceedings. Because of this relationship, CASA serves children and youth who are often unreachable by other organizations.

IMPACT REPORT

ADVOCACY PROGRAMS

The relationship fostered between the Juvenile Court and CASA allows the organization to serve foster children and youth who are often unreachable by other organizations and is highly respected for the positive outcomes associated with assigning a CASA volunteer to a child in care. Due to the unique access point that CASA of Cook County has, CASA is appointed to high priority cases that the Judge, Public Guardian, and/or State's Attorney feel need special one-to-one case management and child's best interest advocacy.

Our Advocacy Programs

EARLY CHILDHOOD COURT TEAM

CASA of Cook County is part of the Early Childhood Court Team (E.C.C.T. or Safe Babies Court), an innovative collaboration to achieve better outcomes for the most vulnerable infants zero to three-years-old served by child welfare case management and treatment teams, with a goal to reduce the amount of time young children spend in foster care and decrease the recurrence of maltreatment. Safe Babies Court places special emphasis on infant mental health, trauma recognition through Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs), and increasing community resources and involvement to support families. A CASA volunteer serving on the E.C.C.T. is a key partner with DCFS staff, foster parents and/or birth families, mental health providers, and community partners to “wrap around” a child and family at risk.

Our Advocacy Programs

MEDICALLY AT-RISK KIDS (M.A.R.K.)

CASA of Cook County is assigned to medically fragile children who are identified by local hospitals as victims of abuse and neglect. Through the Medically At-Risk Kids (M.A.R.K.) Program in partnership with local hospitals, CASA volunteers monitor the cases to ensure that they receive the appropriate medical care and to minimize the potential for re-abuse. CASA volunteers also work with youth that are later determined to have cognitive delays and/or medical trauma.

Our Advocacy Programs

CREATING INDEPENDENT TRANSITIONS FOR YOUTH (C.I.T.Y.)

Youth who are still in child protective custody by age 16 are particularly vulnerable; they are likely to leave the system without returning to their home of origin or being adopted. Without a safety net, the stark reality for youth aging out of foster care is that within two years they are at high risk to be unemployed, homeless, and/or incarcerated. CASA's C.I.T.Y. Program addresses these challenges by assigning a specially trained CASA volunteer to older youth with a focus on empowering the youth with tools for successful independence, including education, job training, financial planning, housing, and health care.

Our Advocacy Programs

LARGE SIBLING GROUPS

CASA of Cook County is court ordered to be assigned to all sibling groups of three or more, with seven siblings as the average family size assigned. These large sibling groups are assigned to ensure that siblings who are separated with different housing placements are able to be reconnected with their siblings via CASA for visitations, support, therapy, and as an additional resource to the family and foster parent.

Children served by CASA of Cook County are primarily from communities on Chicago's South and West sides who have experienced historical racial inequities resulting in over-representation in the child welfare system. CASA VOLUNTEER IMPACT

The tenacity of CASA of Cook County volunteers helped 78 children to achieve permanency in 2021, with 68 percent of these children being reunited with their families.

CASA of Cook County's goal is for children to achieve permanency, or move into safe, permanent homes, as soon as possible. Studies show that the best possible outcome for most children is to be reunified with their families when it is safe to do so. The story below exemplifies the advocacy of two CASA volunteers which resulted in permanency outcomes for the children served.

CASA volunteers Claudia C. and Amy F. trained to become court appointed special advocates to make a difference in the life of a child in foster care in Cook County. Neither volunteer could have anticipated the friendship they would develop with the other CASA volunteer on the case or the natural mother of the children they were assigned to serve on their very first case.

Claudia and Amy were assigned to a case of five siblings, ranging in age from five to seventeen years old. This large sibling group was assigned to CASA due to the recommendation and insistence of the Judge as well as the natural mother. The family had a goal of reunification; however, due to the pandemic and multiple moving placements for the children, the steps to reunification were extraordinarily complex. Neither roadblocks nor complexity hindered these CASA volunteers who were instrumental to achieving this goal with a communication plan that involved foster parents, case workers, and schools.

Working with the natural mother, the CASA volunteers helped to identify and facilitate mandated and other services such as mental health support, housing resources, and transportation that would be vital to bringing the family back home together. When it became clear this family was headed in the right direction, Amy helped advocate at case and family team meetings and in court for the older siblings to be returned home first.

Shortly upon the older children returning home, tragedy struck the family when an older sibling was killed in a tragic accident. Claudia and Amy rallied to get emergency support and grief counseling in place to support the family. When Claudia discovered that there would be a delay in receiving essential funeral funds from the agency, she reached out to her Advocate Supervisor at CASA. That same day, CASA of Cook County was able to provide needed funding to support the family during this terrible and tragic time, including transportation and funeral attire.

Over the last six months, these amazing CASA volunteers worked to ensure that the natural mother had the support needed to ensure the remaining siblings could return and remain at home. Claudia and Amy tirelessly collaborated with the school, caseworker, therapist, and other family members to ensure this happened. In December 2021, the Judge officially closed this case with all five siblings returned home and both CASA volunteers staying involved as interested parties to support the family. The story was altered for this family on the day that two community citizens took their first steps to become court appointed special advocates for children in Cook County foster care!

FINANCIALS

CASA of Cook County's Board of Directors maintains sound financial practices, a balanced budget, and funding diversity. Administrative and fundraising costs are kept low so that more funds go directly to services for children in foster care by recruiting, training, and supervising CASA volunteer advocates. CASA of Cook County is able to serve one child for a year at a fraction of the cost spent per child by the child welfare system.

MARIA & CHRISTINA OCHS

An extraordinary commitment to CASA of Cook County runs in the family for mother and daughter Maria and Christina Ochs. Maria served as a CASA volunteer on four cases over eight years before retiring from her role. She credits serving as a CASA volunteer with giving her so much in return for her service—a deep knowledge of the child welfare system and a compassion for the families stuck in the system. Maria has shared what she learned as a CASA volunteer over the years with family and friends. Her first-hand experience motivated many others to become involved with CASA, including her daughter Christina who now serves on the CASA of Cook County Board of Directors.

Christina says she supports CASA because she is proud of her mother's work as a CASA volunteer and wants to support that. But there is also a personal connection for her as an adoptee. Christina says, "I could very easily have been a child served by CASA if I had not been adopted into a loving home. It isn't a child's fault that they are in the child welfare system. They have been failed by the adults in their lives, and it is our responsibility and honor to make sure that they are cared for." Christina says that her knowledge of the impact of a CASA volunteer through her mother's work coupled with her work at the Board level makes for a very powerful personal appeal to her network. "CASA makes this tremendous impact on children, and I know as a Board member that the organization is incredibly lean and efficient. Dollars donated go directly to training volunteers who serve children." While Maria no longer serves as a CASA volunteer, she continues to hear from some of the children she has served—including annual Mother's Day cards—and is grateful for all she gained from the experience. She says, "Because of CASA, my heart has expanded, and my life is richer because of it." Thank you, Maria and Christina, for your inspiring example of a commitment to CASA and children in Cook County foster care!

Team Leader-Giving Back to the Future

TIM FLOOD

New CASA volunteer Tim Flood was in training when he answered the call to lead a Giving Back to the Future Team as part of CASA's 2021 Gala, which was virtual for the second time during the pandemic.

Not only did Tim lead a team, but he also achieved the highest fundraising total for the event, raising nearly $15,000 from friends and family. Tim said he chose a fundraising goal that was both achievable and aspirational. He was encouraged by the enthusiastic response to his appeal from his connections through his Notre Dame University alumni network, business contacts, and Evanston community members.

Tim applied to be a CASA volunteer on the recommendation of a friend who knew he had been interested in becoming a foster parent and, having recently sold his business, was looking for a meaningful volunteer opportunity. Going through the CASA training he learned about the systemic issues that bring so many Black and Brown families into the Cook County child welfare system and then keep them stuck there. While it can seem like one person can't make a difference in the face of so many challenges, Tim's long-time friend who is a social worker in Chicago confirmed that becoming a CASA volunteer is deeply impactful. He shared with Tim that studies show that one consistent adult who invests in the life of a youth can truly change the story for that child. Tim has since been sworn in as a CASA volunteer and assigned to an older youth from a large sibling group who has recently experienced the loss of several key adults and service providers. Tim's desire to impact a child's life immediately, while helping drive permanency, is truly a dream realized for both him and the youth he is assigned to. Thank you, Tim, for making a life-changing impact in the lives of many children through your service and fundraising!
